Executive President

Seven is the magic or sacred number; seven is the symbolic number, often synonymous with perfection.

Seven, yes, seven years. That is how long Luciano Barisone has been successfully running the artistic direction of Visions du Réel, Festival international de cinéma Nyon.

Seven years during which he has vividly illustrated what it means to be an "honest man", in the noblest sense of the term.

Seven years during which film fans, professionals or amateurs, have benefited from the true lesson in film and permanent humanity that he constantly lived and disseminated amongst the audience as well as the staff and the Board of Visions du Réel.

Luciano Barisone has often repeated that "film was born from documentary", thus notably alluding to the Lumière brothers and today affirming that everything brings together fiction and reality, to the extent that we no longer need to talk of a genre of film but, quite simply, talk of film. Let's listen to him instead: "Men and women come with their stories, they speak of the world, of what is happening, of what affects us, of what delights us. Sometimes their stories concern us directly, sometimes not... The sorrows, the fears, the suffering take form, but so do the hopes, the desires, the joy. Utopia and disillusion meet. We ponder the present and the future of humanity."

Throughout these seven years, Luciano Barisone has constantly insisted on the high ethical and qualitative requirements that should preside over the selection of films. "The spirit that characterises our festival is a spirit of challenge and discovery, one of refusal of simplicity and all conventions... this state of mind also has its criteria: the respect for the people filmed and for the audience, the filmmaker's serious implication in their work, the necessity of the film in itself, the originality of the projects, the coherence between the chosen subject and the form adopted to represent it."

Luciano Barisone also has a passion for sharing. This teacher who became a festival director has indeed always been willing to meet others, the other, in particular young people, whether they are from film school, secondary or high school; he is always passionate about encounters and sharing. Does he not say that "a festival is a place for encounters between images and words, cinema and thought, those who make films and those who watch them. All of this takes place with the mark of human experience that inspires all of us, the actors and viewers of the world."

Finally, Luciano Barisone is a man seeking meaning, in search of an absolute form, which no doubt comes to him from his father and his mother, he, the Communist and her, the Catholic, who bequeathed to him their search for the ideal. To quote him once again: "Looking for the other always comes down to looking at oneself... to succeed in doing so, you need a meeting, a sharing, a need, a faith...this desire to construct an "image" refers to the possibility of filming the visible to capture the unseen. That is to say, filming man to refer to humanity, speech to identify the mind, the body to perceive the soul. In the end, it is a question of filming the "invisible."

Seven years, and what ground we have covered! And what success! How else could we describe the evolution of Visions du Réel, festival international de cinéma Nyon, over the past seven years? It is a success in terms of audiences: since 2011, when the Festival was taken over by Luciano Barisone and a new team, Visions du Réel has indeed almost doubled its audience. It is also a success in terms of programming since the international press has widely recognised its quality, described as "an eclectic and demanding selection always guided by significant aesthetic and ethical choices."

With the 2017 edition, for which Luciano Barisone has undertaken his final selection, there is no doubt that this success will be confirmed and that we are going to experience a real grand finale!

LUCIANO BARISONE

Artistic Director

(...) there's a bluebird in my heart that wants to get out
but I'm too clever, I only let him out at night sometimes when everybody's asleep.
I say, I know that you're there,
so don't be
sad. (...)

Charles Bukowski
The Last Night of the Earth Poems

A few scenes from films... and the journey begins. The images trace out a path.

At the same time, a face takes shape: the face of the world.

In Mexico, men and women, young people and old people, each with their experience of life, put objects in a small box. It will go to the depths of the sea to join the bodies and souls of those who were lost during a storm.

In Nagorno-Karabakh, beings wander endlessly. The melancholy of eternity has affected them. A delayed effect from the shock of the war, this frenzy has them going constantly in circles, without fearing death, which, on the contrary they would welcome gladly.

On a Beirut building site, Syrian labourers work on the construction of some blocks. They are all refugees. While they build a new district, their cities are flattened beneath the terrible strikes of the war.

In an abandoned shop in America, which is almost in ruins, a militant filmmaker pays the inhabitants of his former district to tell his camera their stories. The city was home to the working class for a time. Today it is home to misery. And the rage of the weakest.

In the forest of Borneo, two natives roam their land. Before them, the world, such as they have known it since childhood, is changing shape. Trees disappear, machines appear. Words are uttered, uselessly. Silent, with their bows, arrows and spears, they contemplate the disaster.

We observe from afar. It is the fate of the audience. It is its solitude. And also the possibility to synthesize. It is a condition already practiced by others. Distance oneself from life so as to get closer to it. This is the "agape", a selfless feeling that does not deny complexity and the dramatic condition of the world, but opens up to hope. It is one of the ways to spend our stay on Earth. It goes quickly. Our presence at the Festival even more quickly. And finally we wonder about what we are leaving behind. A project? Some images? Words?

I think of love, inscribed not only in the word cinephilia, but also in every image of the world. Indeed, we make images (through painting, visual arts, writing, photography, film) because we love. Even the horrors represented make us feel—in their total lack of humanity—the need to love. And with this love (for film and for humanity), we fight against exclusion and against a fragmentary vision of the world. And we recognise only a single identity, that of human beings, things among things, at the same time equal and different.

This love, about which Marguerite Yourcenar talks in Memoirs of Hadrian ("that mysterious play which extends from love of a body to a love of an entire person") is not merely appearance, but flesh, rhythm, energy. A love that inhabits the shots, that regulates the editing, that brings the films to life. A love found in the form of things, rather than in the subjects addressed.

This love for humanity, and for the world that it inhabits, has inspired all the steps that you are going to follow in this edition of Visions du Réel.

Roberto Rossellini said one day that he made films because he loved life, and that if he had no more films to make, he still would have loved life. Any discourse in style stops there. But it stops there because, when we talk of life, we talk of breath. All the films that we are going to show you come close to this breath of life, they capture it. Not only through the images, but also and above all through the short moments that they live on screen, their succession over the course of time. An image does not persist, if it does not have the breath of life from the time that it has lived. This is where love surprises us, as in all romantic relationships. An instant. Life opens a door. We are surprised. Emotion begins its work. Is it good? Is it bad? Augustin d'Hippone said: "Love and do what you want!"

Visions du Réel and Swiss Mobiliar

A strong partnership

Swiss Mobiliar is proud to support the Visions du Réel film festival as main sponsor for the ninth year. The company is again financing the highest award of the competition: the 'Sesterce d'or la Mobilière for the best feature film of the International Competition'.

This type of partnership is fully in line with the core values of Swiss Mobiliar, which supports many cultural events in Switzerland. The company is an important player in Western Switzerland, and especially in Nyon, where Swiss Mobiliar Life has its headquarters and employs about 390 people.

The interests of its clients are of central importance to Swiss Mobiliar, just as Visions du Réel gives first priority to its audience. Swiss Mobiliar is organised as a mutual company; its performance conception differs from that of a limited company. The insured as well as the employees benefit directly from the success of the company.

Swiss Mobiliar also intends to convey this mutualistic approach within the company, and is committed exclusively to projects and events in line with its values.

Swiss Mobiliar Group

Every third household in Switzerland is insured by Swiss Mobiliar. Active in all lines of insurance, Swiss Mobiliar has an annual premium volume of CHF 3.5 billion. About 160 agencies and offices spread all over the country, among them 79 largely entrepreneurial general agencies with their own claims service, guarantee proximity to approximately 1.7 million customers. Swiss Mobiliar Insurance Company Ltd. is domiciled in Bern, and Swiss Mobiliar Life Insurance Company Ltd. in Nyon. The Swiss Mobiliar Group also includes Swiss Mobiliar Asset Management Ltd., Protekta Legal Protection Insurance Ltd., Protekta Risk-Consulting Ltd., Mobi24 Call-Service-Center Ltd. and XpertCenter Ltd.; all five companies are domiciled in Bern.

Swiss Mobiliar has more than 4,600 employees in its home markets of Switzerland and the Principality of Liechtenstein as well as 308 trainees. It is Switzerland's oldest private insurance company and has operated on a basis, without ever changing its legal form, since it was founded in 1826.
